Introduction: Why This Content, for This Group?

The Jiu-Jitsu Fundamentals class is the team's entry point: it brings together beginner students, who may join at any point during the year. That's why the content is organized into cycles that repeat every four months — so every new student encounters the full set of essential Jiu-Jitsu positions within just a few months, regardless of when they joined the team.

The focus here isn't variety, but quality repetition: closed guard, mount, side control, turtle position, basic guard passes, and the first open guards (De La Riva and spider) come up repeatedly throughout the year, in increasing depth, so students truly absorb the fundamentals before moving on to the more complex material covered in the intermediate and advanced classes.

This document serves as a reference guide for the team's instructors: each cycle repeats four times a year and is divided into weekly classes, with the techniques to be covered, ensuring pedagogical consistency for anyone building their foundation in Jiu-Jitsu.
